A photograph of Melrose High School. The building is a modern, multi-story structure with light-colored concrete walls and dark-framed windows. The words "MELROSE HIGH SCHOOL" are painted in large, dark letters on the side of the building. In the foreground, a tall black flagpole stands with an American flag flying. A chain-link fence runs across the middle ground, and a grassy lawn is in the immediate foreground.

elaborate train set. His toys even earned him the coveted "Broken Toe Award" when he once tripped over the tangle of video game wires on his living room floor. And of course, he shared everything with his very best buddy, his daughter Laura.

A good joke was Mr. D.'s signature, and "shaking up" people was an extra bonus! He once climbed to the roof of the school in order to get a better view of his band practicing—nearly giving his wife and everyone else present heart attacks in the process.

Most of all, we remember his music. Mr. D. was a musician beyond compare. During his lifetime, Mr. D. performed in 667 shows and concerts as a member of at least ten bands and orchestras. He played almost every instrument imaginable, from very bad violin to a very good trumpet. A composer as well, he wrote such works as "The Creature From Ell Pond," and "The Band-Aiders' March." But he was first and foremost the director of the Melrose High School Band, and spent countless hours working on band shows and trips, whether it be drilling, composing, choreographing, or planning. The MHS Band meant everything to Mr. D., and he meant everything to its members. Their greatest tribute to him is and will always be their commitment to practice and perform the music that he loved so very much.

We join the band in their tribute and dedicate this yearbook to Mr. Frank DiGiacomo, a remarkable man whose special memory will not be sustained on this silent page so much as in the music that he loved and in the hearts that loved him.

So remember the laughter, the jokes, the games, and the love. Remember the music. Remember Mr. D.

How does one remember a man like Mr. DiGiacomo?

"Mr. D." is best and most easily remembered for the music that he brought to the City of Melrose for over twenty years. The amount of patience he had teaching his struggling young musicians truly was "Beyond Measure."

Maybe Mr. D. was so patient because he had so much in common with his students. He really was, as his daughter lovingly eulogized, "just a big kid." His basement was filled with games, Disney memorabilia, and an

In September, 1990, we entered the halls of Melrose High School as freshmen. We were certainly overwhelmed by the huge sea of people, the monstrous size of some of the students (especially those seniors), and the new found academic pressures. We found ourselves saying, "I'll never be that big . . . I'll never make the grade." In other words we were saying, "I'll never be a senior!" We knew that we were going to be here for a while because our Graduation Day was far off, in June, 1994. Now all of a sudden, we find ourselves here, and we are the seniors.

The Class of 1994 has certainly proven, just by making it through high school, that we can handle the fast-paced, changing world of today. It started when we entered. We were the first class to come to high school from Melrose Middle School. We certainly proved that we could pass this test of sudden change without any hesitation. Passing these tests also have its rewards; we are also the first class fortunate enough to have four years of high school documented in the yearbook.

The Class of 1994, a class that measures 227 students, is also the smallest class in the school. We are also the smallest class to graduate in the last 30 years. The year we were born, 1976, the graduating class contained 511 students. Although our class is almost half that size, we were still able to go beyond everybody's expectations and achieve twice as much. The Class of 1994 are some of the highest achievers around. Not only have people accepted the challenge of the first AP courses, like AP Calculus, but they have added to their schedule many part-time jobs, several varsity sports, clubs, and volunteer work. All of this, and still time to have fun on the weekends! As the surging brain power of the Class of 1994 moves beyond our college acceptances, we are able to relax and take a deep breath, because we were the last class fortunate enough to have multiple choice S.A.T.'s.

There are many things that can change in the blink of an eye. These are usually the toughest challenges to face. It is after having moved beyond these obstacles that we find that we are now stronger people. As the course of this country moves from George Bush's "kinder, gentler, nation" to Bill Clinton's world where we "don't stop thinking about tomorrow" the class of 1994 must move towards the new, rapidly approaching century. This is what the theme of the yearbook is all about. We must go beyond the limits that people have set for us and the limits that we sometimes put on ourselves. We can feel confident in the knowledge and experiences with which Melrose High School has provided us. The foundation for success is there, and it is up to us to build upon it. It is up to us to prove that we really are Beyond Measure.

Beyond The Classroom

From the Freshman Semi to a lunch in the Cafe, the memories captured under the title Student Life are beyond measure. We will always remember our proms, classes, and especially the friendships we have formed. Who could forget Sophomore Field Day at the Knoll, or dancing the night away to "Wonderful Tonight" at the Junior Prom? Student Life consists of many different times, places, and events that we, the class of '94 will keep with us forever.

Inch By Inch

Look out world! Maryanne Makredes got a young start rolling along the fast track to success

A young Janine St. Louis melts everybody's heart with her beautiful eyes.

Rachel Pezzuto and Nicole Serfes are a hit as grapes in their dance recital.

Susan Durland makes a face while trying to maintain balance.

Lauren Siuda's feet can't hit the pedals, but boy can she play "chopsticks."

Jen Lansky, during her sweet and innocent stage, gives the Gerber Baby a run for her money.

Lisa Cinelli and Randy Kelley take a break from playing to enjoy each other's friendship.

Mike Ciulla kicks back and relaxes on the beach

Ryan Doherety is a little dazed after opening all of his presents Christmas morning.

After the first of many difficult climbs, Katie Durant stops for a well-deserved rest.

Colleen Hubbard puts on her scariest Halloween grin to compete with the pumpkin

Right: Nat Stout kicks back at the sophomore field day in 1992, which, judging from Nat's expression, was a vastly enjoyable event.

Below Right: Jim Evans, looking very dapper, is all set to go to the prom.

Way Below: As freshmen, Colleen Hubbard, Kristin Salemme, and Kara Grant can hardly imagine what life will be like when they become all-powerful seniors.

Way Below and to the Right: Even as an eighth grader, Suzie Crowley is an accomplished dancer.

Directly Below: Hannah Lynde, Erin Sandquist, Rosanna Pascuccio, and Melissa Rosselli are ever-eager to participate in their freshman French class.

Rachel Pezzuto and Liza Moreschi are so excited about shedding their former titles of "Freshman" and attaining their new status as sophomores, that they can barely contain their excitement.

LONG AGO AND FAR AWAY

Left: "Uh, oh I think we're stuck," says Marie Murphy frantically, as she turns to Beth Botto, Jen Helein, Kara Grant, and Kate Walsh.

Below: Thinking about the big game tonight, Rich Harrison takes his mind off his classwork.

Left: Jason Santos ponders his situation and questions sheepishly, "Where is everyone?"

TONIGHT . . .

Tonight
All of our magical dreams
Becoming one . . .
And all our years of yearning
Uniting all our fun

Looking at all our friends
And seeing the children we once knew,
Never forgetting all the memories we've shared
And all the times that we've been through

Realizing how long it's been since yesterday
And how close we've come to tomorrow
Accepting that we're growing up
Disregarding any sorrow

Sharing moments of pure perfection
Forming friendships we'll never forget
Realizing how precious we should make
The little time we all have left

Remembering every day gone by Wishing that each would last
Not believing how far we've come
And how quickly our time has passed

We each have our separate dreams
But the future's mournful too
'cause soon we'll be forced to say goodbye to the best times we ever knew

We all look so beautiful
And inside we feel so right
For all of our magical dreams
Are becoming one . . .
Tonight

by Patrick Daly

Right: Ryan Mahoney looks utterly wonderful, as he makes his way to the dance floor, or was it the barn?

Above: Patrick Daly, alias Robert Palmer, and his backup singers, Christine Groves, Lauren Siuda, and Maryanne Makredes, are simply irresistible.

TAKING DRASTIC MEASURES

WELCOME TO THE MINIMAG

"Minimag, Minimag, Minimag. Hmmm. I've heard of it, but then again, I've also heard of disestablishmentarianism. What is the Minimag, anyway?!"

These seem to be the typical thoughts of many a potential Minimag reader. We, the editors and staff, understand these thoughts, and are here for you. We can explain.

We at the Minimag are taking drastic measures, that is, touching upon subjects beyond what the rest of the yearbook covers, enough to be called a separate section. Within these hallowed pages are things which define our year, yet in a different way than other parts of the book. For example, the class prophecy and will, the survey results, news headlines, and student writing are all contained here. The Minimag is a record of our thoughts, feelings, and opinions concerning today's world. It shows how we see ourselves and each other.

So relax, O Reader of Minimag. Relax and enjoy yourself.

Will succeed in life by and by.
With school in our veins
We will grab life's reins
And ride tall till the day we normal girl

she lived in a world where they all knew her name and never a lonely moment was spent for a fear of them forgetting all alone was where she found herself walking along a busy street searching for herself between the cracks in the sidewalk for she lost it somewhere, somehow there is a moment that is to be found when her followers will take the lead and give her a broom to sweep up at the back of their procession and in those last moments she will break free to rise above them all as she stumbles upon herself and dusts off hoping to begin again

Tales From Beyond
(the check-out counter)

Nearly everyone has, like me, worked as a cashier at some point in his or her life. It stands to reason, then, that nearly everyone has had to deal with customers who have apparently made it their life's goal to be annoying. First, there are the obsequious ones who are afraid to bother anyone, and will wait patiently until I, engrossed in counting the cracks in the ceiling, notice and wait on them (which I am being paid to do). These people apologize profusely if they have only large bills and then I am forced to (gasp) make change! (No! Anything but that!)

On the other end of the scale, are the obnoxious customers who like to take out their frustrations of the day on anyone they can find. Namely, me. For example, one woman once caused a giant disturbance which held up the line for twenty minutes because after making three separate transactions, she claimed she had been shortchanged. Only after much tedious counting, adding, and checking the receipt did I realize that she was right, and I handed her the change: one dollar. Yes. Just one.

My favorite customers, however, are the eccentric ones. The kind of people who, after looking at five different blue items, ask for "the blue one". One man, apparently from the planet Zarquon, entered the store and inquired, as I was standing behind the cash register, if I worked there. After establishing that, in fact, I did, he then calmly said, "Do you accept American currency?" Bound by the etiquette required of customer service, the only acceptable reply was a simple "yes" through teeth tightly clenched against hysterical laughter.

But cashiers are people too, and people have dreams. And in my dreams, I see myself looking that man straight in the eye and saying, "American currency? Oh, no, sir, I'm sorry. But I can take two chickens and a cow!"

Crystal Ball

*The Light Reflects Off The Lustrous Surface, Glimmering Mysteriously
So Brilliant, Yet Revealing Nothing
I Peer Inside, Desperately Trying To Quench My Curiosity
Yet It Only Laughs Silently
At My Futile Attempts
I Cannot Help But Wonder How
Something That Seems So Crystal Clear
Can Be So Vague Inside
Suddenly, I Realize That I Need Not Worry
For I Hold The Crystal Ball
In My Own Hands.*

THE FINAL MEASURE

High school is definately a unique experience for all of us, and one never to be forgotten. It began slowly when we were but little freshmen, but soon sped up and flew by. Already four years that at one point threatened to loom over us forever are over. During those years we strived to make each day memorable and beyond compare. The clubs and activities we joined and the sports teams we played with. Parties we attended and bizarre or mundane ways we spent yet another Friday night in Melrose. Dreams we have formed and worked towards. And, of course, friends we have made and cherished. All this and so much more we packed into those four years. And although these days are almost gone, we will never forget them. So here they are, ourselves and our memories, all combined to make a high school experience beyond measure.

Beyond Compare

The bell rings and suddenly, the desolate halls fill with jubilant bodies, bursting with pent up energy saved throughout the day. Two o'clock had finally arrived, and many students' dreams had been answered: freedom until tomorrow. But for most of these students, the school day is not nearly over. Hours of practices, games, meets, and matches await them after their books are closed.

Be it the brisk autumn, the dead of winter, or the warm spring, not a day goes by where students cannot be found improving their skills and strutting their stuff. This much is evident through the outstanding efforts of all of the athletic teams at Melrose High.

Tournament appearances by the Girls Softball Team, the Field Hockey Team, the Volleyball Team, and the Boys Basketball Team, and League Championships by the Golf Team and the Boys Swim Team are just small reminders to illustrate that, once again, the athletes at Melrose High are BEYOND COMPARE.

Captain Chris Buttimer ('93) and Coach Wilbur.

Showing off his many talents, Brian Fogarty can not only practice his dance steps but also catch a fly at the same time. Along with Tony Sestito, Brian will be captain in the '94 season.

A Catchy Tune

Right: In this game of catch, the ball is in the lead, but Steve Potamis ('93) is closing in quickly.

Filling in his team on the hottest gossip, Coach Wilbur has every pair of eyes riveted on him. Well, almost every pair. His first year with MHS, Coach Wilbur's fine coaching skills have earned him a well deserved respect.

Wilson ('93) decides to stop and check his size before tagging home plate. Showing incredible versatility, Matt played several positions for the Raiders.

Heartbreak is one thing that the Melrose High School baseball team has had more than their share of. Even though they lost many games by only one run, and played their first seven games away because the home field was unplayable, the players never lost heart. They rallied in the second half of the season, ending on a high note.

After losing their first seven games, Melrose bounced back with an exciting win over Watertown. In the bottom of the seventh inning with two outs, the coach pulled a suicide squeeze to the batter Brian Fogarty, in hopes of scoring Adam Brown ('93) at third base. The attempt was successful, making Melrose's first home game a win and the highlight of the season.

“One day, we even had practice in six inches of snow. Talk about dedication.”

Leading the team was captain Chris Buttimer ('93), along with the '93 seniors. Other strong contributors include Brian Fogarty, Dave Dale, Tony Sestito, and Dave Blanchard.

Next year's captains, Tony Sestito and Brian Fogarty will lead a promising varsity squad. With several key players returning and plenty of experienced newcomers filling other positions, the team should break into the top half of the League.

Practicing the limbo, Jill Grabiec discovers how low she can go as she narrowly avoids a wild pitch. Jill's performance at the plate was so phenomenal that her batting average placed her second in the league.

For two consecutive years, Melrose's softball team has earned itself a berth in the state tournament. Unfortunately, this year they were matched up against state powerhouse Bishop Fenwick, and were eliminated in the first round. Just qualifying for the tournament, however, is an honor and a testament to the team's ability. During the regular season, Melrose triumphed in eleven of its eighteen games.

Coach MacLeod and Assistant Coach Crawford sparked the team to such a fine performance. Captains Jen Winslow ('93) and Dara Tebo not only provided leadership but also played with skill, thus becoming Middlesex League All Stars.

“All our hard work paid off when we qualified for the tournament.”

Monica McGovern

Pitchers Michelle Amirault and Monica McGovern performed well on the mound, while their fielders made the plays behind them. Heidi Stevenson, Nicole Keller, Jill Grabiec, Rene Federico, Dara Tebo, and Adrienne Beshong regularly covered the infield, while Amy Dolan, Jen Winslow ('93), and Susan Downey controlled the outfield. Danielle Beshong ('93), Nicole Troy, and Rebecca Interbartolo played valuable minutes also.

Nothing can tear Adrienne Beshong away from the game as she intently watches her team's every move. Adrienne spent a majority of her time at first base, where she was the epitome of consistency.

Star Gazing

Left: After pitching a perfect strike, Monica McGovern kneels to give thanks to God for his help.
Above: With a swing like that, every hit is a smash for Heidi Stevenson.

Captain John McClafferty ('93), Coach Lund, and Captain Marty Cassavoy ('93).

"Ha, Ha! Take that!" says Nick Alfano to his opponent. Working with a strong core of seniors, he will lead next year's team as captain.

Grin And Bear It

Right: Jason Mitchell struggles to decide whether to return the ball with his racket or his hand.

Having forgotten what sport he is playing, Charles Russell plans to head the ball instead of smashing it with his racket. Next year, Charles' varsity experience will establish him as a team leader.

... that's going over," thanks Brian Carroll whips a powerful backhand at his opponent. A sophomore, Brian was a key player in the team's line up.

The tennis team members' uplifting spirits and closeknit friendships made their season a success despite their losing record. The co-captains, Marty Cassavoy ('93) and John McClafferty ('93) led their players, while Coach Lund developed his players' skills. The team's athletic ability helped them to beat Watertown, and play competitively against the tough opponents in the Middlesex League.

Bryan Brinley and Brian Carroll played the number one and two singles respectively, battling the best tennis players in the area. Coupled as the first doubles team, Mike Ray and Charles Russell met unusually challenging competition. Nick Alfano

"We had some tough losses, but the team always played their hearts out."

Jason Mitchell

Alfano and Chris Molina played together as the second doubles team, while Eric Nordstrom filled the spot of number three singles.

Expectations for next year are high, especially since many of the Middlesex League's strongest players have graduated. Under the leadership of Nick Alfano, next year's captain, the team has the potential to become a serious contender in the Middlesex League.

"I just hope my hat doesn't fall off," thinks Lauren Siuda as she bites down on her lip for that extra bit of concentration on her backhand. Lauren shows strong potential for next season and will be counted on greatly.

With creased eyebrows, Melissa Roselli wonders if this shot is going to make it. Melissa played by-side with Julia Tutela ('93) as the 2nd doubles team.

Although the '93 girls tennis team was young and took some rebuilding, under the leadership of Captain Kerri Todisco ('93) and Coach Coughlin, the girls came out strong with a 5-8 record.

Despite being hampered by a knee injury, Todisco competed as the number one singles player for the Lady Raiders. Not far behind her, playing in the number two slot was Allyson Casey. A promising couple was Tara Cargill and Johanna Tighe, who once again look to be strong competitors for the upcoming '94 season. Other doubles partners contributing were Stephanie Lyons ('93) and Allyson Casey, and the duo of Julia Tutela ('93) and Melissa Roselli. Regardless of what the record may show, the team had several close matches. One especially grueling and disappointing was the one point loss to Stoneham.

"We are looking forward to next season and the return of some potentially strong players."

But the Lady Raiders had another wonderful season, as they have always had. The girls have fond memories of the team, namely, Mr. Coughlin's minivan rides and, of course, running to the good old S Station for food.

"I hope it comes back down if I throw it up . . .," ponders Allyson Casey while she debates whether or not to toss the ball up for a serve. "Well, here goes!" Allyson anchored the Lady Raiders in the 2nd singles spot.

What Goes Up . . .

Coach Morris and Captain Justin Maietta ('93)

T.J. Riccardi quickly realizes how heavy the shot put really is. T.J. led the team with his best throw of 44 feet, 4 inches.

Pain Is Temporary . . .

Above: "It's as easy as a hop, a skip, and a jump," thinks Rich Harrison as he attempts the triple jump.
Right: It's a bird, it's a plane, it's Dave Appleyard.

Jack be nimble, Jack be quick, Dustin Reid jumps over the high jump stick. Dustin showed them how high to jump in the Middlesex League Meet.

Mike Shay makes the last lap he is assured victory. He finished with his best time-54 seconds.

With the crack of the starters pistol the Raiders knew they were ready to compete with the tough Middlesex League. With motivation from their scoring captain Justin Maietta ('93) they sprinted forward to second place, with the only loss coming against undefeated Reading. Strong team contributors were Jim O'Malley in the two mile, Dustin Reid in the hurdles, Rich Harrison in the 100 yard dash and 4x100 relay and Mike Shay in the 400. One of the highlights was when the Melrose relay team pulled through after a close meet with a win over Winchester. Next year's team looks to be just as good, if not better, as the ('93) squad, being led by the returning juniors and seniors.

“ We took the whole league by surprise. ”
Mike Shay

With a jump out of the starting blocks, the Melrose Raiders were on their way to a great season. They gave it their best shot and with a lot of effort, came close to winning several meets.

Wendy Schreiber, with her strong runs in the mile, captain Fritha Burns ('93) in the two mile and all star Sandy Pavao ('93) in the 880 were major contributors. Leaping through the air, Susan Thibeault and All-Star Becky Hale hurdled their way to many victories.

With only a minute remaining on the clock and a tie score, it seemed as though the Melrose girl's basketball team was going to steal a victory from arch rival and league powerhouse, Wakefield. Putting their heart and soul into the game, Melrose played one of its best games of the season, matching Wakefield point for point. Unfortunately, the victory slipped through the team's grasp. This game was the epitome of Melrose's season. The team matched its opponents' level of play, but could not emerge with wins. Ending the season with a misleading 5-15 rec-

The team performs another one of their amazing halftime stunts.

This was another super season for the basketball cheerleaders. All of the girls worked so well together, which is evident by their great performances at the games. Despite almost killing each other while preparing for exhibition, the girls are proud of their results.

The team thanks the boys for such an exciting team for which to cheer. But the boys probably could not have been so successful if it was not for the girls' support.

The girls will never forget the good times talking with Back Seat Dottie, the "Gossip Queen." The seniors wish the underclassmen and Mrs. Shea the best of luck. Good luck to B.B., C.H., and R.P.

Sitting Pretty

This year's group of girls was one of the best hockey cheerleading squads yet. The team was a very close one, who all enjoyed working together. And that work, which is always appreciated by the boys, paid off. A lot of good times were had during practice for exhibition, and the girls certainly put on a good show.

Even though Mr. Blanchard thinks "it's too cold to cheer," captain Kristin Salemme always had her team ready to cheer the boys on. The girls will never forget the great season they had with all of those crazy conversions on the bus. Good luck to C.O., C.R., and K.S., and many thanks to Mrs. Skaare for all of her help.

There are those that leave tracks wherever they tread. It is these outstanding individuals who take their talent to the fullest and make themselves known.

Melrose High School has been blessed with such people, those who have made names for themselves throughout the Middlesex League, and even the state. We have chosen to dedicate these pages to those individuals, who have dared to be individual, and who have shown outstanding achievement in the area of athletics. We salute them and respect them, but most of all we thank them for acting as constant reminders that the athletes at Melrose High School are, once again, BEYOND COMPARE.

Above And Beyond

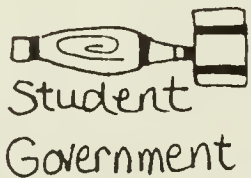

From the foreign language clubs to the Political Club, Melrose High School students have an almost infinite amount of organizations they may join. Clubs offer the student body the opportunity to help improve the school and community, through clubs such as The Environmental Club, and ADD; or play a friendly game of volleyball with a Foreign language Club team. The Clubs and Organizations at Melrose High School are a key element in the development of the school and Student Life.

Senior

Senior Student Government is the largest of all the student governments, because it's members are responsible for the behind-the-scenes work, which makes all of the senior activities successful. Spirit Day was only one of the many activities organized by Senior Student Government members.

Students were asked to dress in school colors, and all hallways and available wall space were draped in red and white. Other important activities included the Halloween Dance, the Winter Ball, the new Senior Week, Class Day, Graduation and of course the Senior Prom.

The Orchestra is a collection of talented musicians under the direction of the dedicated conductor Mrs. Mary Ann Weeks.

The group consists of the Chamber Orchestra (string instruments) and the Symphony Orchestra (strings with brass and wind instruments). The music covers a wide range from Vivaldi to Tchiakovasky, with a few modern pieces thrown in for good measure. In addition to occasional community productions, the orchestra presents three concerts a year: the Christmas, Winter, and Spring concerts.

The Drama Club's fall production, Captain Fantastic was a tremendous success this year thanks to the efforts of cast, crew and director Mrs. Cornelia Beliveau. The cast put in many long hours to ensure that the production would be a hit.

DRAMA

The story centers around Waldo/Captain Fantastic, the comic crazed editor of the Daily Bunyon, played by Sasha Veneziano. Waldo is accused of stealing a fencing trophy from his arch rival Bradford/Inkblot, played by Peter Tura. Later on Waldo is involved in a fight in which he is rendered unconscious by the town bully Ratzo Finko/Ratman played by Eric Peterson. Waldo awakens in a dream in which he has assumed the role of his comic book hero Captain Fantastic. He also comes to realize that all of his enemies have been transformed also. The part of the evil Mrs. Klinger/Catwoman is played by Julie Mortali. Mr. Bip/ Swamp Creature, the unscrupulous owner of the Rathole Club is played by Emeil Kreymer. The part of Penelope Mabury, a staff writer for the Daily Bunyon and Waldo's admirer is played by Jennie Connery.

bo Peter Tura as the quintessential villain Bradford.

gh Julie Mortali is devastating in black, as the evil Mrs. Klinger.

The LOG is more than just the yearbook staff, it is a group of tremendously dedicated individuals. Meeting every Friday night for workshops, the staff gives up a lot of time to meet every deadline. There is a lot of behind the scenes work that sometimes goes unnoticed. We do not work for the recognition. Our goal is simple; we want to produce a book that everyone will like and one that we can be proud of.

The "Thistle", MHS's literary magazine, provides a medium through which Melrose students can publish their writing and artwork. This year, the "Thistle" opened with something new: an editors' "Thistle" designed as an example of what the "Thistle" is all about. But the year culminated in June with the publishing and distributing of the finished masterpiece, a magazine filled with original creative work by the students of MHS.

Advised by Mr. Melvin, the National Honor Society looks to help out with Project Bread at Christmastime. In addition, members fulfill their service requirements by acting as peer tutors for students in need. The highlight of the year is the induction of the new members, which takes place in the spring. A candlelight service with various awards and speakers makes the evening truly special. Finally, the Philomathean Chapter plans to work in conjunction with the Pine Street Inn, to help out the less fortunate.

Formed to further the study of the German language and culture, the German Club meets to provide an atmosphere in which students can freely practice what they have learned in the classroom. The Club participates in interactive videos put on by the Goethe Institute and visits the Institute several times throughout the year. In addition, many students participate in the GAPP Program, a month long foreign exchange program with Gymnasium Oberalter in Hamburg, Germany.

The Student Activities Financial Board is a unique organization which empowers its members with the authority to allocate thousands of dollars in funds. This program has been self-sufficient since 1974 and helps support the numerous extracurricular activities at MHS. The board meets in the beginning of the school year to give seed money to each club. It also "loans" clubs money for initial expenses, with the clubs profits eventually returning to the fund.

Peer leadership teaches elementary students grades five through seven about self-esteem, peer pressure and other key issues. In the spring the group will organize an orientation for the incoming freshmen to ease their transition into the high school. Peer leadership is active in the Northshore Peer Leader Network plan, a Peer Swap with other communities. Peer leadership is actively concerned with many contemporary issues, ranging from discrimination to student safety. The group also provides a Big Brother/Sister mentoring service to some elementary students.

Project Bread is a charitable organization for which students and teachers at Melrose High School have been raising funds during the holiday season for many years. Money sent goes directly to more than 400 shelters, soup kitchens, and pantries for homeless.

Beyond The Call Of Duty

The faculty at Melrose High school truly goes beyond the call of duty. They dedicate themselves to teaching the students and find creative and helpful ways to present their information each day in class. But their dedication goes beyond the ordinary classroom duties as well. Everything adds up, from the little things— such as correcting assignments promptly or understanding an occasional missing homework— to the more important— like coaching teams, organizing clubs, and writing recommendations for schools. The teachers time is not limited to the school day either. They often stay late or come in early if necessary. In addition, they spend hours preparing lessons or taking classes to benefit the students through their increased knowledge. By helping the students measure up to their potential, the faculty goes beyond measure.

Wise Beyond Their Years

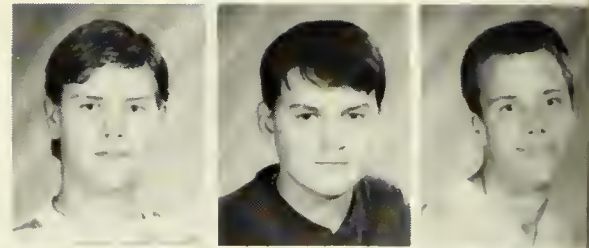

Underclassmen always tend to get the "short end of the stick". But without the unsung help of this under-estimated group of hard working people, many of the school functions would not have been as successful. Underclassmen have their own variety of activities, clubs, dances, sports, and social lives. They are always well respected. In every one of their young hearts, they are all awaiting graduation day. Until then they can fulfill their dreams and expectations by looking ahead towards the future.

Right: At the semi-formal, Jennifer Shields and Seth Dargan take time to smile for the camera and show that everybody had a good time.

Chris Kroon shows his approval of Mr. Reilly's decision to give everyone an extra day to finish their labs.

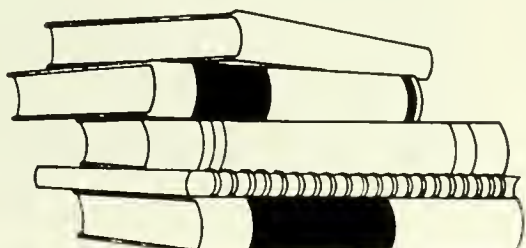

Hanging around after school, Rob Thomas smilyly thinking to himself "If they only knew what I really up to."

After hours of preparation, Leslie Crane, Jen Halloran, Melissa Ehlers, Danielle Edwards, and Michele Stantial anxiously wait for the right moment to make their grand entrance at the semi.

"You have the pass, right?", mutters Liz Bleiler to Steph Kelley, who smiles innocently when asked for a pass.

Andrea DiMaso, Lauren Doherty, Stacey Breda, Sasha Blackwell, and Jen on exchange giggles while telling stories about what happened last weekend. To escape from the chaos of the cafeteria, Kerri Durney and Alicia Curry instantly make their way out in pursuit of a little peace and quiet.

Karen Osman tells David Cabral that it is bad luck to open his umbrella inside.

Becky Hale and Fritha Burns ('93) cheer on All Star Jim O'Malley. As he runs by them, he thinks to himself, "Look at these muscled girls."

Mike Taggart looks around slyly as he awaits the start of class.

Jason Gray concentrates hard on the game as the Feders challenge their opponents.

Norkum takes a break from studying to give a sigh of relief that the day is over.

Emily Ferrick pleads with Mr. Reilly, "Please let me go to my locker."

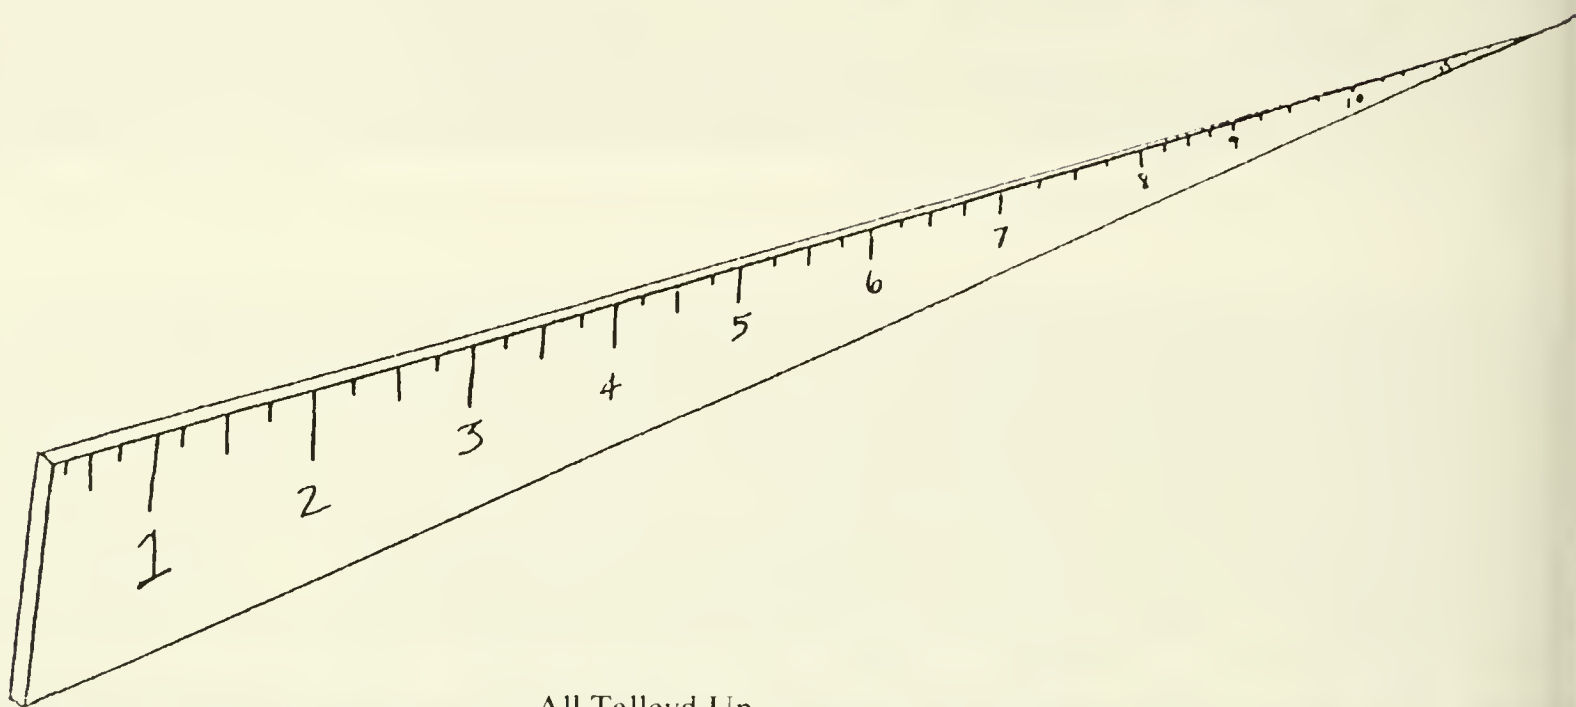

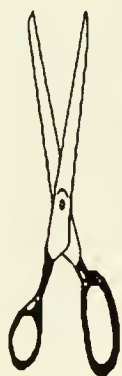

Hughes and Kevin Mandolese walk out of class, still inspired by their teacher's words of wisdom.

Jason Benson drifts slowly down the halls on a Monday morning.

All Talleyd Up

Each time a page in this yearbook is turned, we must think of the countless efforts and contributions given to make this book possible.

The business and student ads on these next few pages are the foundation upon which this special book of memories was built. The purchasers of the advertisements allowed the Yearbook Staff to create a yearbook that every graduating senior will look back on with pride for the rest of their lives, remembering their years at Melrose High School.

To the two hundred students who waited patiently in the Resource Center in late October to pose for their ad pictures, and to the numerous businesses who extended their generosity by purchasing advertisements; the entire LOG staff thanks you for your munificent financial support.

There are several teachers that do a superb job of educating the students at Melrose High School, but there are few who leave as lasting an impression as Mr. Hodgkins. In his 37 years of teaching, Mr. Hodgkins has maintained the same level of enthusiasm as a first year teacher. A proud and devoted alumnus of Northeastern University, not a Friday goes by without his black and red tie in support of his alma mater. The lessons he has taught and the stories he has told, especially the ones about his army buddy Mel, will never be forgotten. Thank you Mr. Hodgkins for everything you have given Melrose High School. You truly are Beyond Measure.

Best of luck in your retirement.

The Log: Beyond Measure

Well, it's over (insert sigh of relief here). It's been a long, hard year, but all of our effort was worth it. Right? Right. We just loved getting up at the crack of dawn on Mondays, and our happenin' Friday nights trapped in the school. Who knew that it would all end up like this? We did! So before you put this book up on some cobwebby shelf, remember: a lot of memories were created in the process of preserving others. Like 2 am at yearbook camp, summer meetings, theme "discussions," the first deadline, panic, stress, and pressure, cover arguments (did someone say green?), more meetings (pizza, anyone?), more deadlines, the underclassmen section (what happened?), orange cropper hunts, the final deadline . . . AAAAAAAAAHHHHHHH!!

But we're okay now. It took a lot of hard work, but it is time at last to draw the 1994 yearbook to a close, and no yearbook would be complete without thanking everyone who made this book possible. The LOG staff would like to give special thanks to Mrs. Carr for putting photo reminders with the report cards, Carol Taurasi for letting us borrow the PPS van, Mr. Terry Bleiler and Purdy Vantine, Mrs. Burns for her computer expertise, Mr. Humphreys for having lists of students always at the ready, Ms. Arena for her photography knowledge, the First Baptist Church and the City of Melrose for letting us canvas for ads, Mrs. Katz for letting us use the Resource Center, the janitors for always letting us in, Tom Keeley, our Jostens rep, Linda Nolf, our in-house rep at Jostens, and last but not definitely not least, Mr. DiSanto, Mr. Hart and their families for spending so much time with all of us!

Michelle D'Amico and Maureen Shaker
Editor-in-Chief Administrative Editor

We, the Sports Staff of the '94 LOG, wish to recall the events which have made this year one which we shall certainly not forget: What do you mean the deadline is tomorrow? Chris' cabinet kick; Big gaps in the track layout; "Just try to make running sound interesting, Steph."; Fights about our favorite "sport"; WE LOVE ROCKY!; Where's Nicole's Golf Copy?; Feel free to change our whole layout, T.; Crooked quote boxes: $$$OOPS!; Nicole and Kristin's fights over the Z-Pic; and Chris' door kicking, car stalling fit: Tom thinks she's a freak!!

We end this year with only one question: Whose idea was it to meet on Friday night anyway???

Best of luck Chris and Steph . . .

Luv, Burns and Roy.

Thanks for the memories.

Minimag is the type of section which involves a certain amount of brainstorming and creativity, so it helps to have an open mind. But after spending a year working on this section, it is amazing how much a person's sanity can deteriorate. This can be accounted for by hours spent tallying up the Survey results or in the computer room alphabetizing and typing up the Prophecy and Will. Emily tragically forgot her VABCs, while poor Mike was forced to endure Timna's stories about how it was a COW! or hear her shouting out "Shazzan!" at specific intervals to anyone who would listen. Beth would often show up to meetings soaking wet, obviously after long walks in the rain spent philosophically contemplating the meaning of Minimag. Other fond memories are of the Bryant College Summer Workshop, and last-minute layouts and copy typing, but we really have had a great time with our section. Also, a special thanks to the Art Staff for their cooperation.

LOG '94 COMPUTER BASICS: (#1) Printout mistakes make great paper airplanes. (#2) Universal solution to all computer problems: turn it off, turn it back on, and hope you didn't make things worse (punching the screen doesn't help). (#3) Printers hate Michael, and vice versa. (#4) If it's true that what you get out equals what you put in, the the '94 yearbook reflects the hard work and dedication of everyone who made it possible. (#5) A 2 to 27 boy/girl ratio is pretty nice.

Business Staff
We can't believe that we pulled it off! Believe us, being on the Business Staff is harder than it looks! It all started this summer soliciting ads from Melrose businesses. (90 weather never felt so hot!) Hours spent over Wendy's house and Maryanne's house. Mr. DiSanto-what don't you have in that wallet?--any more checks for us? Long talks over lunch in the cafeteria. Never forget Maryanne's cool briefcase! How many envelopes do we have to stuff! Although it was sometimes a hard job, we had a lot of fun! Thanks so much to everyone on the Log Staff for all of their help--especially Julie-Anne and our entire staff... Adrienne! Now take a deep breath; glad that we can flip through a book we're proud of.
Best of luck next year Wendy... Maryanne.

Brookings Faculty Editor

Well, after spending countless hours in the computer room (sorry, Wendy), organizing and cropping a ton of pictures (need help Jennifer?), and rushing around like crazy at the last minute (but not Elizabeth, of course), we're finally done. And we got the darn chalkboard in. The never-ending night spent captioning was truly an experience (don't forget the dice!) but nothing compares to the months spent on The Faculty Blurb From Hell.

The Senior Log Editors

Allyson thinks you look fine on those pictures. "Who's the Muppet? Good luck Tara! Love, Casey and Ange"

The Student Life and Organizations: Organization? A contradiction in terms to say the least. But whoever said organization was key anyway... Mr. Hart? Our creativity is at a premium under pressure... "What do you mean we only have three D.P.S.'s for Superlatives... KATIE!!! @#%!!" Thanks Mo, that was a close one! The quest for Prom pictures brought us all a little closer to the EDGE, and pushed or rather flung some of us over. Saturday morning meetings... ah yes... eleven o'clock. "Where is Andrea?" Twelve o'clock. "Where is Andrea?" Twelve thirty. "oh well at least she brought us snacks." Speaking of snacks; we the Student Life section would like to thank the makers of Crunch and Munch and Clearly Canadian for outstanding achievement in the junk food industry. Stress... "Tara did you just write on my face?" Caption this! "Ange."

Amy Dobson & Katie Blair
Underclassmen and Index. It wasn't as easy as we thought it would be. Saturday morning meetings at Amy's house "Katie come on over at 9:00 AM 9:30 rolls around sorry I over slept". Don't mind us we just don't understand each other. Page numbers we never messed up those. Alls We have to say is that the Friday night meetings have to go next year. Oh Katie 23 theirs no difference. We get along just great when we are not at Log. Never again do we want to have to number little pictures, maybe its because we had to number the same ones over again about 5,000 times. The Monday of the third deadline when we stayed in the office and ate lunch. "No Katie you can't take the chinese food in with you when Toms their". Every time a proof would come we would send it right back with mistakes. Good deep conversations. We never got off topic. Well Thank you very much Karen and Julie. We couldn't of done it with out your help. Good luck to all the seniors. Alls we have to say is good luck to the people who get this section next year. If you have any questions on page numbering and reading a ladder I'm telling you in advance, don't ask Katie or Amy.

Nick DiSanto, Tenley Hart, Joey DiSanto, and Ryan Hart knew exactly how to liven up every Log meeting: paper airplanes!

Kristin Burns and Allyson Casey enjoy their last moments of peace before the hectic pace of deadline madness begins.

Mike Crowley kicks back and talks on the phone assuring us that Desktop Publishing will be "No problem!"

Megan Sampson, Timna Onigma, Katie Durant, Allyson Casey, and Kristin Burns were prepared for everything at Bryant College during their 3 days at yearbook camp.

The Log Staff takes time out of Christmas vacation to get the seemingly endless pages of profiles typed up.

Karen Osman, Lauren Siuda, Nicole Troy, Amy Dolan, Maureen Sheehan, Stephanie Milano, Julie Dittmer, Katie Bleiler, Adrienne Beshong, Megan Sampson, Emily Chin, Tenley Hart, Katie Durant, Maryanne Makredes, and Wendy Schriber take a much needed break after canvassing the city of Melrose for ads.
